It makes us trusted partners.

Curiosity.

What it means at Muse.

Curiosity is how we learn and avoid complacency. It's about asking better questions, listening properly, and staying open to new ideas. Curious people take time to understand the problem, including what communities, partners, or colleagues see that we may not.

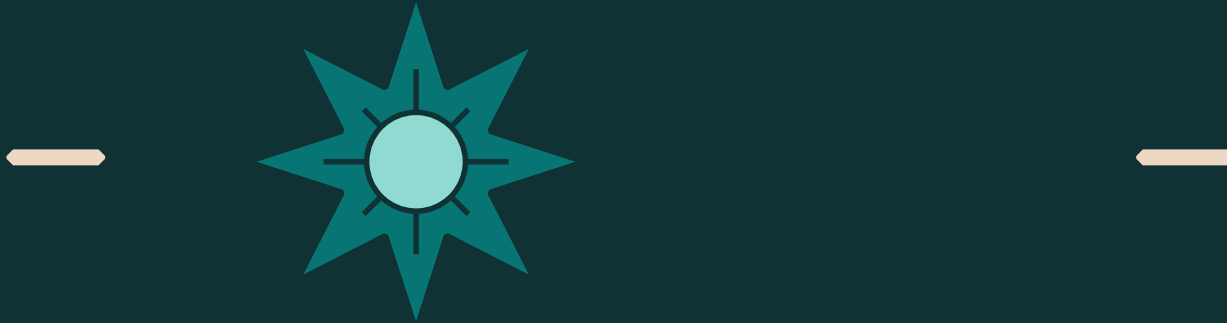

It's also about trying new things because curious people don't assume they already have the answer – they want to understand more deeply before they act. Curiosity can be a superpower for finding the right answers and remaining leaders in our field – it helps us evolve and innovate.

Curiosity in action.

- Asks thoughtful questions to understand people, places, and problems
- Listens carefully to different perspectives before forming an opinion
- Seeks out new ideas, insights, or ways of working
- Tries a new approach in a small way, then shares what's worked (and what hasn't) – to learn for next time
- Challenges assumptions constructively, with respect

It makes us valuable partners.

Positivity. What it means at Muse.

Positivity isn't forced optimism. It's realistic belief and momentum – a focus on progress, not blame (and there's an infectious, undeniable energy in that).

Positive people embrace and encourage teamwork, even when the going gets tough (and it will).

Collaboration unlocks the power of partnership.

Positivity in action.

- Brings constructive energy to challenges, conversations, and problem solving
- Focuses on solutions rather than dwelling on problems
- Encourages others and recognises effort as well as outcomes
- Maintains perspective under pressure and helps steady the team
- Looks for opportunities to move things forward, even in small ways
- Values progress over perfection
- Stays calm under pressure and keeps communication clear

It makes us partners that are easy to work with.

Care.

What it means at Muse.

Care is how we treat people, our partners, our communities, and the work itself. It's empathy and respect – and it's responsibility. Caring means paying attention to impact, acting with integrity, and supporting each other in ways that are fair and sustainable.

Care means kindness and clarity.

Care can be the small things that make a big difference.

Care in action.
